

The following letter was published in the Toronto Star print edition on Saturday, March 9, 2013 (Page IN7)

Columnist stifles ethnic dialogue

Re: Jews and Poles learning to talk, Opinion March 4

No group of historians has a monopoly on Polish-Jewish relations. So Rabbi Dow Marmur's claim that the group he champions are often attacked by Poles "who blindly refuse to accept critical analysis" is simply baffling. Those historians' works have been the subject of serious criticism by professional historians in leading Polish journals. Rabbi Marmur's approach is not an invitation for dialogue, but an attempt to stifle it.

Canadian Polish Congress, Toronto